Two visual tags (blue for males, yellow for females) will be placed on each alligator, one behind the head and one on the tail.

Reporting Tagged Gators: If you observe a tagged alligator, please report (date, time, location, behavior, tag number, and color) to Biologists at KiawahGator.com.

Dolphin Strand Feeding

Help us preserve a unique feeding behavior

Kiawah Island is one of the few places in the world to witness a unique feeding behavior called strand feeding, where dolphins rush the beach to hunt fish. In many areas along the Kiawah River strand feeding can be seen from the water and land. This is a fascinating behavior, but dolphins must be given ample space. In the Kiawah River, we know this rare behavior is done only by a handful of individuals. Disrupting dolphins while feeding can result in stress, reduced success, or abandonment of this behavior altogether.

Please responsibly observe dolphins from a distance, as they will be much more likely to continue their unique strand feeding behavior.

Keep your distance from dolphins - it’s the law!

The Marine Mammal Protection Act recommends not approaching dolphins within 50 yards from a vessel (kayaks included) and 10 yards from land. Never touch, feed, or encourage animals to approach you or your vessel. When in a vessel dolphins can approach you; however, do not chase, follow, circle, or separate groups. Continue your direction of travel, slow down and avoid sudden changes in direction.

Loggerhead Sea Turtle Nest Evaluations

Sea turtle nesting and hatching is monitored on our beaches by a group of dedicated resident volunteers. The Kiawah Island Turtle Patrol is one of the largest turtle patrol volunteer programs in the U.S. and has been in existence since 1973.

The Kiawah Hatching Patrol evaluates turtle nests three days after seeing signs of hatching. An evaluation includes determining: how many live turtles emerged from the nests, how many eggs did not hatch and/or how many hatchlings did not live to make it out of the nest, and our most exciting part, to assist with releasing struggling hatchlings into the ocean.

Our Turtle Patrol loves to share the sea turtle experience. To see Turtle Patrol conducting a nest evaluation, visit KiawahTurtle.com to find out when and where the next evaluation is scheduled.

Continuing to Protect our Sea Turtles

Digging in the sand and building sandcastles is a beachside activity enjoyed by many. However, the holes that remain can pose a threat to people, vehicles and especially Loggerhead Sea Turtles. Consequently, the Town of Kiawah has banned metal shovels on the beach and we ask that all holes be filled back in before you leave the beach.
