

THE SANCTUARY HOTEL REOPENS

Kiawah Island, SC, June 4, 2020 – The Sanctuary at Kiawah Island Golf Resort reopens today after being closed for two months in response to COVID-19. The 255-room Forbes Travel Guide Five Star and AAA Five Diamond beachfront property located 20 miles south of historic Charleston, South Carolina has revised its operations to guard the health of guests and employees while still delivering the unparalleled level of service for which it has become renowned.

“We are delighted to reopen in time for the summer season and are excited about welcoming back guests who are eager to resume travel to a healthy destination that offers abundant outdoor space and activities” said The Sanctuary General Manager Bill Lacey.

The hotel, along with the rest of Kiawah Island Golf Resort, partnered with a team of experts from the Medical University of South Carolina (MUSC), which served as an advisory council to guide the resort’s comprehensive health and safety protocols. These procedures institute best practices for ensuring the wellbeing of guests and employees and enhance those recommended by authorities, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

The resort currently offers modified guest services as it continues to reopen more amenities in accordance with guidance from authorities.
