

Kiawah Island Golf Resort Offers Fun Opportunities to Enhance Distance Learning

Kiawah Island, SC, August 5, 2020 – As more families choose to exercise virtual learning from home, and as more schools plan a later-than-usual start date for the fall term, families have the option of extending their summer travel plans well beyond Labor Day. With virtual classrooms, children can learn remotely from anywhere. Families who choose to distance learn while visiting Kiawah Island Golf Resort have the added advantage of participating in the resort's abundance of "field trips" that can boost their children's learning through fun, hands-on experiences.

Following is a sampling of field trip opportunities that can further the development of children's minds, bodies and spirits while still maintaining safe social distancing.

Explore Lowcountry waterways

Join a naturalist on a Dolphin Encounter either by kayak or motorboat and learn close-up about these fascinating full-time residents of the Kiawah River and about the intricate system of creeks and marshes – and all the amazing creatures who call it home – that are such a vital part of the Lowcountry's ecosystem and environmental health.

Art class is in session!

Foster your student's creative spirit at our outdoor, open-air art studio. Students of all ages can sample a variety of fun-filled arts and crafts, including pottery, mosaics, glass fusing, and canvas and wood painting. The resort's art instructors can accommodate any skill level, and help students gain confidence in expressing themselves through art.

The outside scoop on fascinating wildlife

Guests of all ages can gain a wealth of knowledge about and a deeper appreciation for Kiawah's native wildlife and history from the resort's trained naturalists, who enjoy imparting their wealth of knowledge. From a safe distance, observe and learn about the amazing and often misunderstood American alligator, one of the island's apex predators, in its natural habitat, or explore remote island habitats to seek out dozens of bird species, both large and small, and learn about the natural history of our avian wildlife.

Roll call for gym

Develop the skills for a new sport you have always been curious about trying or hone the skills in a sport you already know. Learn effective paddleboard or kayak techniques with our councilors, or test and improve your marksmanship during an archery lessons. Take a low-pressure family tennis or golf lesson with one of our professionals, where the emphasis is on fun rather than perfection. Learn to use breathing to create body awareness, calm the mind and build strength and flexibility during a yoga class. For fun, self-guided exploration and fitness, take to our 30-plus miles of paved trails and 10 miles of beach by bike. While exploring, look for the observation towers that dot the island to get a bird's-eye view of Kiawah Island's marshes, rivers, ponds and maritime forest.
